

Suntrica Solar Chargers available to Chinese consumers

October 1st, 2010:

Suntrica today announced that its range of solar-powered chargers for phones, MP3 players, digital cameras and other consumer electronic devices including GPS are now available in China thanks to two deals recently signed with major players in the Chinese market.

China Daheng Group Co., Ltd. (www.daheng-oa.com.cn/en), which specializes in the import, sales and distribution of a variety of business and consumer technology products, will act as Suntrica's distributor throughout China selling direct to retail outlets.

AKL Beijing Ltd (www.akl.com.cn) will provide sales and after-sales support to end-users, shops and China Daheng Group.

Suntrica's unique solar-powered chargers server two different market needs and provide

- Consumers in developed markets with a portable environmentally-friendly power supply when they are out and about using their portable devices.
- Millions of consumers in emerging markets with a reliable way to re-charge their devices in areas where there is little or no electricity available.

Suntrica SolarStrap™, SolarBadge™ and SolarStrap for iPod and iPhone are lightweight, flexible and virtually indestructible and able to operate in harsh climates – and are easy to use.

Jouko Häyrynen, CEO and co-founder of Suntrica Ltd., says: "We are confident that the co-operation with Daheng Group will enable Suntrica's solar-powered chargers to be the next must-have device for the consumers of China".

Mr. Xue Qiang, Vice President China Daheng Group Co., Ltd., says: "Suntrica's chargers are an extremely practical and environmentally-friendly way for people in China to charge their phones while they are on the move. We know that demand will be high".
